Press release #4

November 2023

Local networks

Dali4Youth project partners formed local networks of young people, young digital artists, volunteers, youth workers and other relevant stakeholders in the youth field who first identified challenges and issues that the youth in their country is facing, and then visioned, modelled and planned medium-term community actions to address these issues through digital art.

Within the timeframe of the project, each partner, together with the local network that they had established, implemented one local action in their community which had a valuable impact on activating, connecting and supporting the personal and professional development of their local youth.

International network

Following the establishment of local networks in their countries, the partners provided grounds for connecting these local networks and formed an international network of digital artists consisting of representatives from each country that participates in the project.

Through this international network, the young digital artists that are included in it are working out possibilities for transferring some of their ideas in the field of digital art in different countries and taking their local activities to an international level.

More information about the members of this network can be found on the project website dali4youth.eu.
